

ANTHROPOLOGY - TRANSFER MAJOR

Faculty Adviser

Janet Campbell: 503-491-7430 | Room AC2667
| Janet.Campbell@mhcc.edu

Anthropology can be defined as “the study of what makes us human.” Anthropologists study the many aspects of being human. They study the past, through archaeology, to see how humans have lived for hundreds – or thousands – of years. They study human biology and genetics, as well as bones, diet and health. They look at how different groups of people get food, prepare it, and share it with each other. The study of anthropology also asks:

- Why did we develop religion?
- How did we change economically?
- How is language used and why did we develop it?
- What did ancient societies look like?
- What values might they have had?

Students interested in pursuing the Anthropology major can complete the following courses toward the Social Science requirement and/or electives in the AAOT (<https://catalog.mhcc.edu/degree-certificate-requirements/aaot/>) (recommended), AS, AGS or ASLA degrees. Students should work with a university transfer adviser to choose the right courses.

Code	Title	Credits
ANTH101	Introduction to Biological Anthropology ★	4
ANTH102	Introduction to Archaeology and World Prehistory ★🌐	4
ANTH103	Introduction to Cultural Anthropology 🌐	4
ANTH140	Language and Culture ★🌐	4

Transfer Schools

- Portland State University (<https://www.pdx.edu/anthropology/>)
- Oregon State University (<http://liberalarts.oregonstate.edu/slcs/anthropology/>)
- University of Oregon (<https://anthropology.uoregon.edu/>)
- Eastern Oregon University (<https://www.eou.edu/anthropology-sociology/>)
- Western Oregon University (<http://www.wou.edu/anthropology/>)
- Southern Oregon University (<https://inside.sou.edu/soan/>)